There is more to successful study than Google, and the Library should be your starting point for everything from study skills to good academic practice and avoiding plagiarism, as well as access to information in all forms, from books, manuscripts and journal articles to web pages, emails, images, electronic books and computer programmes. We provide wide-ranging support too via enquiry desks, email, phone or webpages and also a place to study. So, if you want to get ahead at Northumbria, and achieve the very best results, you should make the use of specialised Library services and materials an everyday part of your study. Do email us if you would like to join a library tour group.

If you would like to test your knowledge of Newcastle, try our Newcastle Quiz
