

Your Guide to Student Support and Wellbeing

Welcome

As a student at Northumbria University we want you to get the most out of everything that life here has to offer.

Studying at university brings a wealth of opportunity to learn and meet new friends. At the same time, alongside your academic studies, you will be managing your day-to-day life including money, budgets, settling into a new city or country, relationships, friendships and new responsibilities.

Student Support and Wellbeing offers advice and guidance to support you during your time at university. Our services complement the support provided within your academic faculty which is an important source of advice about your course and studies.

“Without Student Support and Wellbeing, I would have left university. Instead, I am in my second year and managed to get a first on my assessment.”

Student, Faculty of Engineering and Environment

Student Support and Wellbeing encompasses specialist teams which offer free, impartial and confidential advice on the following:

- Disability and dyslexia support
- Counselling and mental health support
- Financial support
- Welfare and health support
- International student support
- Change of circumstances
- Chaplaincy and faith advice

Over half of all Northumbria students use one or more of our services during their time at university.

We are here to help, and our professionally trained advisers are also happy to talk to you before you commence your studies with us.

More information on all our services can be found in this booklet.

Student Support and Wellbeing was awarded the 2015 'Times Higher Education's Leadership and Management Award' for having the UK's most 'Outstanding Student Services Team.'

Disability and dyslexia support

If you have a disability or dyslexia, or if you think you may have dyslexia, we are here to help.

Our services are open to all disabled students and our Disabilities Advisers can provide you with advice and support if you have:

- A specific learning difficulty such as dyslexia or dyspraxia
- A long-term medical condition
- A sensory impairment
- A mobility impairment
- An autism spectrum condition
- A diagnosed mental health condition

If you are unsure whether you are a disabled student, you are welcome to discuss this in complete confidence with a Disabilities Adviser.

Depending on your individual requirements, we can provide a range of services, such as:

- An early visit to the campus if you are a disabled person applying to study at Northumbria
- A discussion about study support requirements and individual study support strategies
- Advice on applying for Disabled Students' Allowances (DSA) to cover the costs of the disability support required during study
- Arranging individual or modified exam arrangements
- One-to-one specialist dyslexia tutorials or specialist mentoring

- Advice on adapted and accessible accommodation and on the physical accessibility of our buildings
- The use of our Support Worker Service if you require one-to-one educational support, such as the services of a notetaker in lectures or a personal assistant to assist with mobility around the campus
- Advice on assistive technology

"A 1st! I received my mark back and it was 72%! Thank you for your help. The mark would be nowhere near as high if it wasn't for the dyslexia study skills tutorials I had with you."

Counselling and mental health support

We all have mental health, as we all have physical health and, like our bodies, our minds can become unwell.

Mental health difficulties can range from the worries and anxieties we all experience as part of everyday life at university to longer-term conditions which affect our daily functioning. These feelings often pass, but sometimes they are hard to cope with.

Counselling and mental health support is a free and confidential service available to all Northumbria students.

Our counsellors and mental health practitioners are here to help with a wide range of personal, emotional and mental health issues, such as:

- Anxiety
- Depression
- Homesickness
- Relationship difficulties or sexuality
- Feeling overwhelmed
- Struggling to engage with university work
- Not fitting in

We offer the following support services which we will tailor to meet your needs:

- Appointments with counsellors or mental health practitioners
- Guided self-help appointments
- Eye movement desensitisation and reprocessing (EMDR) appointments
- Therapeutic workshops, see: northumbria.ac.uk/cmhswshops
- Ongoing individual/online self-help support
- Referrals to other support in the University and to support services in the community

To arrange an appointment with us, please complete our short online registration form at: northumbria.ac.uk/cmhsregistration

We will get back to you within two working days with an appointment time or offer of support.

“Without the counselling sessions, I’d have left university. The counsellor helped me to talk about my situation without feeling embarrassed about it.”

Confidentiality when accessing our services

We want you to feel comfortable when talking to us and all information provided to Student Support and Wellbeing will be treated sensitively and confidentially.

There may be occasions when it is important for us to share information within the University. For example, we may pass information on to other university staff to ensure your academic faculty knows about any disability-related study support that you require during your course. There are other exceptional circumstances in which confidentiality cannot be maintained, for example to ensure we comply with the law or the University's Duty of Care policies. We are happy to talk to you at any stage if you have questions or concerns.

To respect the privacy of all students and to comply with data protection law, university staff cannot discuss matters relating to individual students with a third party, even where this third party is a close relative or friend. This extends to confirming the student status of an individual – in most circumstances, we cannot confirm to a third party whether a person is a current student or not. We realise that this may be frustrating, but hope you appreciate the reasons for this.

If you are a parent, family member or friend of a student, we may be able to contact the student and let them know that you have been in touch with us, or we may be able to provide you with some general information about student support issues at the University.

“Receiving support from Student Support and Wellbeing throughout my time at Northumbria has had a very positive impact on my self-esteem and the way I approach my studies. I consider it one of the most valuable things I have done throughout my time at university, and will take it with me through the rest of my life.”

Student, Faculty of Arts, Design and Social Sciences

“If there wasn't a Student Support and Wellbeing Service I probably wouldn't be at university still, as they have given me guidance on where to go to receive the help I need.”
